

May 2020

Dear Student:

Advanced Placement English Literature and Composition is designed to provide you with the most helpful strategies to succeed on the AP exam next year as well as success in your undergraduate work in the following academic years. We will cover a full gamut of materials; therefore, you should be ready to dig your heels into several genres of literature throughout the entire school year. You will be expected to work extremely hard, so be prepared in August through the last weeks of school. By taking this course, you agree to engage in summer reading; the English Department recommends that you do so at a pace that allows you to enjoy the text. Reading in June or July will not make your participation in class more difficult than reading in August; however, we do not recommend trying to read the text in the last week of summer before school begins. Failure to do your summer reading is not an acceptable excuse for dropping the course. In addition to taking the AP Literature Exam in May, a required, practice exam will be taken by each student in early to mid-April. This will be completed outside of class time. Finally, we are excited and proud to announce that those who receive an A or B in the course AND take the exam in May will receive transcribed collegiate credit from Elmhurst College. The credit will be the equivalent to Elmhurst's English 200 course.

In order for us to successfully begin the course in August, we have established a summer reading for Advanced Placement English Literature and Composition. You need to purchase the following text. You can purchase the text from Amazon.com, Barnes and Noble, other bookstores and websites, etc.

- Novel: Frankenstein by Mary Shelley (ISBN# 978-0-486-28211-2) The Dover Thrift Edition. (This is NOT the Thrift Study edition.)

To fulfill the summer reading requirement, please keep a close-reading response for the work read. This response must be typed (MLA formatted: 12-point, Times New Roman, 1.0" margins, double spaced, etc.—If you need help, reference the Purdue OWL:

https://owl.purdue.edu/owl/research_and_citation/mla_style/mla_formatting_and_style_guide/mla_general_format.html). You should cite the assigned text as you read. You will need a spiral notebook and/or binder as well.

Specific instructions for each piece are attached to this letter. However, please keep in mind that the responses are due the FRIDAY of our return. The responses will be collected (both electronically and/or via hard copy), graded, and returned to you, so you can use them in our discussions and to study for exams. Therefore, the more thorough your notes, the more personally useful they will be.

If you or a friend misplace your summer reading assignment, you can access all this information on the District 88 website. Go to www.district88.net click on WBHS (top right), then ENGLISH (left menu), then click the file "12AP Summer Letter 2020-2021" at the bottom of the page.

Finally, we have attached the 2020/2021 Willowbrook English Department Academic Honesty and Plagiarism Policy/Contract. As society becomes more reliant on technology, Willowbrook teachers have seen a notable increase in plagiarism, including students claiming material from online sources and/or claiming the work of past and present peers as their own original ideas. Because of this, we want to be sure each student understands the seriousness of this offense and request that you sign and date the policy and return it to us the first week of classes.

Sincerely,

Mr. Brett A. Blair

Response Instructions: Advanced Placement English Literature and Composition

If you choose to take notes as you read, please start them in your notebook/binder which we will use during the school year. The more organized you stay, the more accessibility you will have during the course to the key styles and themes of the authors and their works. Of course, please annotate as well!

I. Frankenstein, or the Modern Prometheus

This text is an AP favorite!! As you will read in Mary Shelley's introduction, she, her husband and a group of friends were forced to stay inside due to a several day storm, so in the evenings, they all told "ghost stories." Shelley began to tell her tale of Victor Frankenstein and his creation, and she was inspired to write her only novel, Frankenstein, or the Modern Prometheus. In her vivid frame story, she creates an image of two beings immersed in sadness and loneliness. Shelley, whose life was immured in tragedy both prior to and following the writing of this novel, creates several moments where her protagonist, Victor, is imbued with "a fervent longing to penetrate the secrets of nature" and who wants to probe "the deepest mysteries of creation." As Victor is inspired by both the death of his mother and witnessing the magnificent power of a lighting storm, he delves into the creation of the Creature.

This haunting tale is one of the quintessential texts of the British Romantic period, underscoring man's constant need to conquer nature. The epistolary tale is told from three points of view, starting with Robert Walton, a mariner who has a need to explore and stumbles upon Victor in the Arctic. Then, as Victor begins and continues this tale, the third narrator, the Creature, tells his excruciating yarn of inspiration and compassion to utter demise and evil.

Below are the two assignments for Frankenstein.

1. The Romantics loved to make connections between the individual and the natural world. Nature was supreme, and man should work with nature not against it. How does nature work for and/or against Victor and the Creature in this novel? Is Shelley trying to make a statement here? If so, what is she trying to say, if not, which of the two characters seems to be the most connected to nature and why? Explain using specific references from the novel. This response should be two (2) paragraphs in length and include quotations and citations from the novel, i.e., (Shelley 62).

2. Show how the characters exemplify the theme of loneliness in the novel through the repetition of images found with Victor, the creature, and even Robert. Explain using specific references from the novel. This response should be two (2) paragraphs in length and include quotations and citations from the novel, i.e., (Shelley 62).

Do not forget to annotate instances throughout the text, not just the first half of the text. Proper MLA format is required for both responses!!

GOOD LUCK!!

ENJOY YOUR SUMMER!!

AP English Literature & Composition

18 August 2017

Your Title

Now, begin your two or three-paragraph response. No first person, unless the first person is inside the quotation. Citations should be used, even with paraphrase to give credit to the author (Shanahan 67). Be sure you have 1.0” margins, and that the entire response is formatted like this, and double-spaced. If you have questions, please e-mail your AP teacher (Blair 77).

Rubric for Responses:

You will usually receive single questions regarding sections of a piece of literature or an entire work. You will have specified paragraph lengths throughout the year. Your responses should be in MLA format ALWAYS. You must also reference the text for support of your claim. Each response will be worth twenty-five (25) points.

- 1. Appropriate length (paragraph requirement), MLA format with accurate citations, etc. /10
- 2. Analysis of the topic with significant examples: /10
- 3. Grammar/spelling/diction/syntax: /5
- Total: /25

Summer reading will be worth a total of 50 points, 25 points for each response.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism Policy/Contract

Plagiarism is a violation of school rules and results in the cancellation of all grades associated with the assignment. A serious offense is grounds for suspension or expulsion at many colleges and has derailed the career of a number of academics and politicians.

Technically, plagiarism is the act of claiming another person's writing or ideas as one's own without giving credit to that original author. Even taking an idea from someone else and including it in your paper without a citation after it is plagiarism. This includes taking another student's work. Be careful, ask when you are not sure, and lean over backwards to give credit where credit is due. Also, if you are using websites that are created to cheat, copy, purchase, and/or take essays, then you will receive a zero.

The following is the definition for plagiarism according to Black's Law Dictionary.

Plagiarism: The act of appropriating the literary composition of another, or parts or passages of his writing, or the ideas or language of the same, and passing them off as the product of one's mind.

To be liable for plagiarism, it is not necessary to exactly duplicate another's literary work, it being sufficient if unfair use of such work is made by lifting of substantial portion thereof.

To avoid plagiarism, be sure to conform to the following (adapted from Lester's Guide of the Research Paper):

1. Acknowledge all borrowed material, whether it is a direct quotation or paraphrasing of another's idea. Introduce the information with the authority's name and include the source of information in a properly formatted parenthetical citation.
2. Always put quotation marks around direct quotations, along with citing them.
3. Simply rearranging material which is not originally yours into your own words is still plagiarism; be sure to cite the ideas of others clearly.
4. Include documentation for every piece of borrowed material.
5. Include a properly formatted works cited entry in the "Works Cited" page for each source that is used in your assignment; do not include works that you did not cite.

Plagiarism includes but is not limited to the written work. Use of another person's work or ideas without acknowledgement will always result in the aforementioned consequences. Examples including musical compositions, artwork, projects, computer software, websites, peer's work, etc.

The consequences for plagiarized work will be a zero on the assignment and a Dean's referral.
