Addison Trail summer baseball team accomplishes plenty

Blazers focus on quality practice time

By Mike Miazga
CORRESPONDENT

The Addison Trail baseball team tried a different approach to its summer season and the results were nothing but positive.

The Blazers played only five summer games—going 4-1—and instead focused more on workouts and practices during the month of June.

"We had a great summer," said Addison Trail coach Mike Kennedy. "We knew what we wanted to accomplish and we got it done. Playing five games is not important to us. We had 60 kids in camp and that's a very good number for us. The guys put in the work this summer and it was an eye-opening experience for the guys who are going to be seniors. They perceived that they are in charge now. We graduated a great group of seniors and the juniors followed their lead. Now they are the leaders, which is a good thing. They took the opportunity right now and used it to grow as leaders."

With those graduations, Kennedy had spots to fill and saw plenty that he liked. "We have positions to fill and guys came out and showed what they can do," he said. "It will be nice next spring when we have those spots on the field to fill. We got a good idea of what we have."

Kennedy lauded the work of returning players such as Michael Scali, Vince and Nick Daudelin, along with AJ Carlson.

"We also have some junior guys who were on the sophomore team last year who are stepping up such as Alex Conrad," said Kennedy. "He was part of the sophomore team last year and he will play a big role on the varsity. He's a pitcher and outfielder who will put himself at the top of the order. He's also a great base runner. He's another guy who really stood out."

Kennedy said the new approach to the summer was met with good acceptance. "These guys are playing six to eight games a weekend with their travel teams," he said. "Now you are asking them to come back during the week and play up to eight games with the high-school summer team. That's tough. I want these guys to take swings and get their swings right instead of just playing games. Bad habits can form and then you have no time to fix them. If you don't get them corrected they can become permanent. This way, they can work on different things and it gives the younger guys the opportunity to see what high-school ball is all about and see what it takes to play at the next level.

"The kids enjoyed the new format. They aren't getting burned out and they will come back ready to go when we start our off-season stuff."

IC Catholic Prep boys basketball team has successful summer slate

Knights moving forward after heavy graduation losses

By Mike Miazga
CORRESPONDENT

While the IC Catholic Prep boys basketball team did lose nine seniors to graduation, the cupboard is far from bare for coach TJ Tyrrell.

And the Knights' coach got a good look at how his roster is shaping up during the team's recent summer season.

"It was a good summer," said Tyrrell. "We have pretty much a whole new group with nine seniors having graduated. We lost a lot of great leaders and there will be some big shoes to fill."

Two players who saw key minutes last year and are returning are senior-to-be Khalil Saunders and junior Ryan Wojtalewicz, along with junior Dom Gaudio. "Even though they are younger, they got a lot of experience last year," said Tyrrell.

The Knights also brought up freshman Chauncey Lee during the play-offs last season. "He gained some valuable experience and we will look to leverage that," said Tyrrell.

With such a high volume of turnover, Tyrrell said the summer season was key in terms of getting the team to come together as a unit. "Chemistry-wise it's a whole new group," the coach pointed out. "Guys are getting comfortable with each other. The summer is a process where you develop those relationships and work on that with each other. From where we started to where we finished I was extremely pleased. I'm extremely optimistic about what is to come for this group."

Tyrrell also saw strong play from Mike Carpanzano. "We expect him to be a key guy," Tyrrell said. "Ryan Asmussen is another guy who has worked on his game and loves the sport of basketball. We will look to get him a positive role going forward."

Back with the team this summer is Saunders' brother Khalil. "He was with us freshman and sophomore year and he expressed an interest in being part of the program again," said Tyrrell. "He did get hurt, but he has stepped right into a leadership role. He's a natural leader. We're excited that he came out."

In addition to Lee, Tyrrell also saw plenty to like from sophomores Justin Hall and Johnny Falduto. "We're all very high on those three sophomores," he said. "They are going to contribute this season. They did good things that reassured us about our decision to give them the opportunity to play varsity basketball. They are hard-working athletes."

Junior Zach Jordan also will be a contributor. "Zach is a natural scorer who has outstanding shooting ability," said Tyrrell. "He has a good basketball IQ. We're expecting him to be one of our key scorers this year."

In addition to four weeks of camp, the Knights played in the summer league at Ridgewood. "We saw some good competition there," said Tyrrell.

The Knights also headed to Michigan where they attended the Ferris

State team camp. "The interesting thing about that is when we went there last year we met the players and coaches and they ended up winning the national championship," said Tyrrell. "Team camps are a very integral part in what we do here. 'You are in the dorms bonding with each other and you end up playing six or seven games in the weekend. It gets the kids around each other. It's such a valuable experience. We're thankful to be part of it. We won all our play-in games at Ferris and then lost in the third round of the tournament.'"

Overall, Tyrrell took plenty out of the summer season. "We're very high on Chauncey Lee," he said. "We expect big things from him at the point-guard spot. His quickness is very impressive at that age. We had good leadership from Ryan Wojtalewicz. We expect him and Dom Gaudio to be leaders. Our juniors absorbed the leadership and chemistry aspects from last year's senior group. It's cool to see those positive habits and behaviors carry over from the things those seniors did. Our younger guys picked up on that and now they are setting the tone for the program. The guys came together throughout the summer. Hopefully they will continue to work on their games and be ready to go when we hit November."

Tyrrell also revealed IC Catholic Prep added York and Benet Academy to the schedule for the upcoming season. "We've definitely increased our strength of schedule," he said. "Those are two very good programs. We want to play the best competition we can."

Cast and crew recognized

The District 88 Board of Education recognized several students from both Willowbrook High School and Addison Trail High School during its recent meeting. The students were noted for their state-level achievements during the spring season of the 2017-18 school year. The honorees from Willowbrook included the cast and crew from the school's IHSA contest play—"Elizabeth Rex". About 50 students contributed to Willowbrook's presentation, which earned fifth-place honors at the IHSA Drama and Group Interpretation state competition, which took place in Peoria in March. Pictured left to right at last month's board meeting are: Anthony Devens, Leonard Kamm, John DeAngelo, Lily Guzik, Danielle Lee, Amanda Miller, Willowbrook theater director Regina Waihler, Jonathan Canzalez, Willowbrook theater technical director John Eppie and Willowbrook Principal Dan Krause. DeAngelo and Sera Corkary (not pictured) both received all-state drama cast awards in Peoria. Willowbrook's crew received lighting and sound awards at the state competition.
